

John Michael Rysbrack (1694-1770) was an 18th-century Flemish sculptor. Rysbrack was born in Antwerp and studied drawings by Italian masters, before settling in London in 1720, where he quickly established himself as the leading sculptor, a position he was to retain until the mid-1740s. He produced vivid portraits and monuments of lively baroque composition. One of Rysbrack's greatest works, the bust of Lord Orkney is on display at the Victoria and Albert Museum, London. He died in Westminster, London in 1770.

